2. Our requirements were outlined to [REDACTED] in as much detail as was practical at the time, and he showed considerable general knowledge of direction finding techniques but was not familiar with either the SCR-502 or the Navy DAQ.

3. [REDACTED] stated that it was not possible to estimate their capabilities concerning delivery of the equipment nor the cost in less than several days. Therefore the writer suggested that [REDACTED] prepare a technical proposal containing an estimate of cost and delivery date and that it be forwarded to us by the end of this week. This proposal will necessarily state those factors which may affect delivery and cost that the prospective contractor has not had time to evaluate.

4. The writer emphasized that time was a very important factor from our standpoint and suggested that if it would take them much longer than three months, we would not be interested.

5. Enclosed with this memo is a brochure obtained from the company, outlining their fields of endeavor and their personnel.
